BE A QUIZZING LEGEND

Everyone loves a good pub quiz, and when it’s done well it can raise a good chunk of your sponsorship total. So, let’s get started...

1. Give yourself enough time to get sorted – you need to find a pub, let your friends, family and colleagues know the date, write or source your questions and find some good prizes!

2. Check out a pub in a central location to where most of your punters will come from. Whether that’s close to work, or where your friends live – making it easy to get to is key. It also helps if the venue has a PA system...

3. Early weeknights are your best bet for getting most people there AND getting the go ahead from the landlord – Monday’s, Tuesday’s and Wednesday’s are best.

4. Use social media, word of mouth and download our handy poster from our website to help you advertise the event.

5. Charge entry per person, in teams of 4 or 5. Between £3-5 per person is a good amount.

6. Source your prizes from local businesses. We can give you a letter of support confirming you’re fundraising for Teenage Cancer Trust to help with this – just email us at challenges@teenagecancertrust.org to ask for one.

7. Start writing your questions! Aim for between four and eight rounds of 10 questions with a mixture of topics – think general knowledge, sport, film and TV, music, history, geography and picture rounds. www.readymadepubquiz.com is a great place to start for ideas.

8. Get in touch with us to order balloons, banners and collection tins to decorate the venue with on the day.

9. Rope in some friends to help take payments, hand pens and paper out and collect the answer sheets in on the day.

10. When the night arrives, start off by making sure each team has written their team name on their answer sheet and explain the rules. During the quiz, repeat each question twice, build in small breaks so people can go to the toilet and the bar, and at the end, ask teams to swap sheets to mark each other’s answers. Don’t forget to give out the prizes at the end!

You could even raise a little bit more money by asking if the pub will donate a percentage of their bar takings on the night, putting out collection tins for those who aren’t taking part to donate some money and including a raffle as part of the evening.
